IMPACT OVERVIEW

ICIC

IMPACT MATTERS

ICCC is delighted to reveal the 2023 Impact Overview, which highlights the growth of our community of over 6,500 small business owners from across the United States and Canada who have spent the past year pushing themselves and their businesses forward through a global pandemic and economic uncertainty. Since 2005, ICCC has provided entrepreneurs with the tools and resources to sustainably grow and scale their businesses, and this overview is a testament to the grit and determination they've shown to create jobs, income, and wealth in under-resourced communities.

2023 marked a pivotal year for entrepreneurs, as they navigated a "new normal" of doing business while still managing the longer-term impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. Not only did these small business owners run the course, they remained committed to their mission and values, reimagined their potential, and sought out opportunities to rebuild their businesses and communities. ICCC remains in awe of their perseverance and their ability to draw upon their experiences to forge a new path forward.

As we celebrate the successes of our small business community, we redouble our commitment to providing innovative and meaningful programming and resources to continue to support entrepreneurs through the various challenges they face.

DISEIYE THOMPSON DISÉIYE

"I participated in the ICCO-Pizza Hut Canada Equal Slice program. That allowed me to learn more about business, learn more about funding, and get access to mentorship. This really helped, especially at the peak of the pandemic, when I wasn't sure of the direction of my business or how to move forward as a business owner. It helped me find some grounding, find my footing in this post-pandemic world, and figure out what the next steps are. The program impacted my business in my ability to be more resourceful, more financially savvy, and to reach out to other people to better build the business."

"Being part of the first Latinx cohort of ICCC was very exciting for us. We were understood by our culture, by our heritage, by all our challenges coming from Latino America. Seeing the drive, the passion, and how [others in the cohort] want to excel in a country that's outside of theirs is not only something very exciting, but it's inspiring. So, being part of the first Latinx cohort for us was very inspiring and encouraged us to keep growing and keep going despite any challenges that we could have faced."
